

TORNADO KILLS ONE MAN HERE

Great Damage Through S. Wisconsin

High Riding Wind, Torrential Rain, Freak Lightning

Destruction of Small Buildings, Uprooted Trees, Silos Down, Barns Struck in Half Hour—County Suffers Seriously in Spots—Reports from Other Sections.

BULLETIN

At 2:30 Saturday afternoon it was impossible to determine extent of damage to crops. Much corn was blown down. In some sections, notably near Milton and Edgerton, tobacco plants suffered. The Gazette called every part of the county and all other points that could be reached by phone with the same general story of sheds, trees, silos here and there, blown down and lightning playing havoc in many sections. Latest reports show that the storm was also in the west part of the state near Dubuque and that there was much damage about Shullsburg and Dubuque. It lifted and swept small sections and lifted again, performing many freakish tricks, leaving some places pocketed and undisturbed. The wind currents were too high generally to do great damage. In Janesville according to records by C. H. Rumrill, the fall of rain Friday was one inch.

One man was killed by a falling tree in his own yard in Janesville, one man struck by lightning near Sharon, others received slight injuries, hundreds of trees were blown down in the city, houses unroofed, tobacco sheds razed, garages and outbuildings wrecked, telephone wires put out of commission, traffic in the city delayed or stopped entirely for Friday night, lights in the east and south sections of the city dark, barns and silos wrecked by wind and others destroyed by lightning, in a storm that swept through the Southern part of Wisconsin from Janesville east, beginning shortly before 5 o'clock Friday afternoon.

Brewed Close to City.

The storm was brewed a few miles to the west and north of Janesville. It grew into violence reaching the volume of a tornado as it struck the city limits. The First and Fourth wards suffered most. Here Louis Delbert Hayes was killed. Crossed wires in the home of F. C. Schorrer on High street caused a blaze to call out the department at 5 o'clock. In a moment it seemed the streets were flooded with water. Streams flowed down Milwaukee street. The wind whipped everything and in every part of the city small limbs were blown from trees. The lights went out. There was a break in the wires near Poyette it was stated. All the reserve power was called into use.

Swept Through Fourth Ward.

Through the Fourth ward, out Western avenue the tornado roared. It covered the whole southern part of the county, followed the Rock river valley to Beloit and east of the city was deflected also to the north. In Johnstown and Lima trees were blown down. It hit Walworth county broadside, swept from Whitewater to Sharon. In another story is told of the wide area of the storm as it deflected from here and extended from Sheboygan almost to Chicago when it hit Lake Michigan. Freakish as are these storms it left out some of the places on the line of march and here and there a section escaped without damage or hurt.

How Storm Broke.

The clouds as they came over Janesville looked like an inverted pan of biscuits. Sagging points were toward the earth. Black and threatening borders and gray masses came on growing blacker as they came. Lightning was severe and constant but less dramatic and sensational in continuation than Wednesday. There was the gray pallor of unnatural light in the streets now filled with rushing autos and persons seeking shelter. When the storm hit, a globe on top of the post at the corner of Main and Milwaukee went to the sidewalk with a crash. It was the starting signal and for twenty minutes there was darkness and rain and wind.

Story of Wind and Rain

Shade trees, the pride of Montecore, fell in the path of the storm as though they were mere twigs. Trees were taken up by the roots, some which towered 50 feet or more in the air. Traffic was blocked on Western avenue, Main street, Riverside street for two or three blocks by trees which fell in the road. Some were broken off at the trunk.

Farmers Are Looking for Housekeepers.

There has been a big demand for women to do housework in the country. Farmers looking for housekeepers say they are willing to pay almost any reasonable wage to a good housekeeper. There have been several Want Ads offering work of this kind and only a small percentage of them have been able to find suitable housekeepers. Perhaps you are looking for a position of this kind. If you are, the quickest way of finding it is to read and use Want Ads, for they are the best little helpers that can be found. It doesn't cost much to run an ad for a few days and you will get results because people are looking for trained and experienced help.

Electric Light and Power Cut Off

Felled by a tree blown down in his own yard, Louis Delbert Hayes, 4 Arch street, suffered internal injuries from which he died 20 minutes after he was taken to the hospital. He was found by his wife, who was in the house to close the windows. As she closed the windows at the front of the house, a large maple tree in front of the house was blown down. The tree fell into the house, crushing Hayes. He was taken to the hospital, where he died 20 minutes later. The tree was found to be rotten and was leaning over the house for some time. The wind and rain on Friday afternoon caused the tree to fall. The electric light and power was cut off in the area around the house.

MANY INJURED

Sheboygan Hit; 13 Boats Capsized at Oshkosh; Madison Building Falls.

Entering the state at the northwestern border, it apparently followed a diagonal line and made its exit at the southeastern corner. At no place in its path through Wisconsin did the storm appear to center, the burden being scattered among villages, towns and cities where it hit.

Sheboygan county reported the heaviest property damage and largest number of injured. Hundreds attending the county fair in progress at Plymouth, were caught without shelter and a dozen were taken to the hospital.

At Oshkosh, another point-hit hard, 13 racing yachts were damaged and their sailors hurled into the waters of Lake Winnebago. They were rescued after being numbed by exposure to the elements.

COMPLETE HIRING OF 200 TEACHERS

No Great Shortage Felt This Year—Still 40 Vacancies in Rural Schools.

Practically all of the 200 teachers for the one-room country and state graded schools in Rock County have been hired for the 1921-22 term, according to reports reaching County Superintendent O. D. Antleed from the various school districts. The average salary this year will range between $110 and $115. It is predicted, or slightly under last year's average of $120.

Salaries generally have been slightly cut although in some districts increases have been given. The majority of the teachers will receive from $100 to $110 per month, the highest paid being $125 and the lowest $80. There are still about 20 vacancies in the county to be filled before schools reopen.

The cutting of production in industrial plants in Janesville and DeKalb, especially, has turned many girls out of schools, explained Superintendent Antleed. Many of these girls were teaching in rural schools until attractive salaries offered in industry during the war took many of them from the teaching profession and caused a big shortage. Now they are returning to school work.

In several instances, young married women are being hired this year, desiring to be out of the home and who have been obliged to accept lower wages.

SEES CHANGE IN JANESVILLE HOMES

Returning to Janesville for a visit with old friends after an absence of 16 years, Charles Daley, Woodstock, Ill., declared Friday he was surprised at the manner in which the residential sections have spread out.

"There does not seem to be so much change in the business district," he said, "except that you have a few new buildings and the fronts have changed somewhat. But I would certainly get lost in the home sections now. It is surprising how they have grown."

Mr. Daley is a native of Delaware and was on his way there.

Theatrical Artists Use "Fake" Perspectives in Painting Large Curtains

There was a strange atmosphere around the wings of the Myers theatre. It wasn't the electricians who were raising a racket putting in the new footlights. Nor was it the carpenter laying a new floor.

There was a more pleasant sound than that. Still it wasn't a tune. It was just a soft humming. From somewhere in the rafters came the words:

"Dame Nature planned her colors bright:
By twos together to make white light;
With red, blue green is always blent;
Green blue is orange's complement;
With yellow, violet blue is seen;
Red violet red is always blent;
Orange yellow, with blue so bright;
Green yellow, with violet—makes white light."

So up the rickety stairs the sound was traced. Amid the confused outlay of ropes, pulleys, huge masses of asbestos curtains, beams, bare-brick walls and cob-webs, an artist stood, large brush in hand, a sign, but sticking from his lips. Near by on a make-shift table were his colors—large pans of shades of blue and cream.

Scene Painter at Work.

He dipped his brush in a mop of hair; instead, he showed a brilliant bald spot. He wasn't clothed in flowing apron; he wore a pair of dirty overalls. He was just Frank Haller of Chicago, one of the highest paid scene painters in the theatrical business.

Before him was a strip of asbestos curtain eight feet high and 20 feet wide—just a small part of the curtain that stretched 20 feet high. On that portion, he was bringing forth magically the folds and hangings of a rich, soft drapery with those tiny bits of color here, a dash there, a streak of white—and slowly the new drop that is to face the audience on Labor day, when the redecorated Myers theatre opens, was born.

Use "Fake Perspectives"

It was a marvel how, though seeing and working on so small a section of the whole at one time the painter executed his great sheet and created a new thing. It seemed that of necessity he must have to step far back and study to make sure that his perspective was correct. But there, it was discovered that no matter what the scene painter is producing in those delightful effects that lend "color" and "finish" to the act as it appears on the stage, the perspective as the Captain Wolf received a bullet in the head and neck and was wounded in the arm, producing a pistol and fired, wounding the officer. Allen was later placed in jail.

GREAT SCOUTS AND WHAT THEY DID TO BECOME FAMOUS

The Gazette will begin in a few days a great series of stories that will be enjoyed by old and young. Every Boy Scout will want to read these tales of Great Scouts.

Do You Know?

How Buffalo Bill and Wild Bill got their names? What was the "Wild West" of the Plains? and how he got his name? Who was the last man to see General Custer alive? Who were the original "Rough Riders"? That a half-breed negro was the greatest chief of the Crow Indians and that his tribesmen poisoned him to keep his spirit with them when he wanted to return to civilization? That a scout once saved an emigrant train from the Indians by "scouting" himself. Who was the "Death Wind of the Delawares"? Who was the "American Mazepa"? Who was the "White South Sea" and how he was killed? That one great scout was a poet, another a painter and another a playwright? The story of Buffalo Bill, the understudy of Buffalo Bill? That a South Sea islander was General Crook's favorite scout? What was the strangest duel ever fought in America? Who was the "American Ulysses"? Who were the "Bloody Explorers"?

The Author Knows.

These stories were written by one who has made a special study of it since the day of his boyhood, when he, too, was stirred by the ambition to be a scout, game hunter and Indian fighter.

For many years he has lived in the heart of the Indian country, and has been involved in some of the most exciting and dangerous adventures of the Indian frontier.

Read a few of these true tales by Buffalo Bill and you will find them completely facts of our Indian history. It is a series which will create the maximum amount of interest—something everyone will enjoy reading.

Begin in Gazette.

The Gazette will begin this series in a few days. Watch the Story page for the first of the series. Cut them out and put them in a scrap book. They will make a valuable souvenir and will give you a feature that the Gazette will print daily for some weeks and is one of the reasons why the Gazette is the complete and unusual newspaper.

"When did you leave the trade, Mr. President?" asked a painter.

"On the day President Garfield was shot I got my first contract," was the reply. "It was for painting a church near Marion."

BATTLESHIP STILL HOLDS HIGH PLACE

Bombing Tests Fail to Oust Big War Vessel as Main Defense.

[By Associated Press.]

Washington.—Results of bombing tests held off the Virginia coast from June 21 to July 21 have failed to displace the battleship from its position as the nation's chief defense at sea.

This was the outstanding conclusion of the report of the joint board of the army and navy by Gen. Pershing, the senior member, and approved by Secretary of War and Acting Secretary Roosevelt.

However, the board said the tests which resulted in the sinking of four ex-German warships, by aerial bombs, proved "it has become imperative to provide for the maximum possible development of aviation in both the army and navy."

The tests proved also, the board agreed, the "necessity for aircraft carriers of maximum size and speed as an effective adjunct of the fleet" and for the development of "effective anti-aircraft armament."

Instead of furnishing an economical instrument of war leading to the abolition of the battleship, the development of aircraft has added to the complexity of naval warfare, the board stated.

The board found military aircraft, when used beyond the radius of action of shore bases, possessed "limitations which make it impossible to control the air in the limited assistance in the service of information and support, and important strategic and tactical qualities in operations of coast defense, but might prove a decisive factor in coastal operations if used in adequate numbers."

"If heavier-than-air craft are to be effective in naval warfare," the report said, "they must have great mobility, and since their radius of action is not great, additional mobility must be obtained by providing mobile bases, i. e., aircraft carriers."

So far as known no place large enough to carry a bomb effective against a major ship have been flown from, or landed on, an airplane carrier at sea. It is probable, however, that such developments will make such operations practicable.

WE MUST NOT FORGET.

Another boy who went away to war and remained over there will be buried in Janesville Sunday. There will be another grave here at home instead of a wooden marker over in France. From every town and city, from all the country side, the news daily is that some other boy has come home to have made for him the last and final resting place for a wounded body. The eternal paths of such a death and such a burial is more deeply impressed upon us in this hour, than when the newspapers were filled with long lists of casualties and we searched the "Killed in Action" column for the possible story in one line, telling of tragedy in our little world. On Wednesday there were gathered here 27 men who remained able to meet in reunion—the last remnant of a regiment. Across the chasm of years there is a bridge of the dead. It is always and ever the same. War leaves its frightful scars—more on the faces and bodies of the wounded or the mangled remains of the dead, or on those who died in camp and hospital from disease, than on the hearts of those who have lost—and won: the mothers and the fathers and the other loved ones, the schoolmates and associates. We shall not soon recover from the poignant tragedy of war. It is well we should not. Somehow when they bring a boy back to America, he is only the poor body, we better understand and more deeply realize all the duties we owe to the living. It helps to keep memory awake and we must not, must never forget.

PEACH COBBLER DAYS ARE HERE.

It may be true that we do not live in the peach belt but that is no reason why we should not enjoy that most delicious of fall fruits, the peach in its most attractive form, the peach cobbler. Strawberry shortcake has its poet laureate each year and the rhapsodies written and unexpressed either in poetry or prose are legion. But from the kitchen nowadays comes the delicate and suggestive aroma of the peach as it is being transformed into that bouquet of delights, the cobbler, as mother used to make it. The difficulty about the peach is that it is hard to distribute. In its habitat, ripening on the tree, it is quite a different fruit from what we are forced to buy in regions many miles from the orchards. Down in Delaware, over in Southern Michigan, and in the Ozarks, the peach lives, grows and has its being. There are other peaches growing in other sections but when it comes to flavor and richness of bouquet nothing can touch those from the sections named, Prestons, offering little resistance to gustation, eaten as the darky does melons, so as to hush up the ears, make life for a time even among the Ozark Bald Knobbers possible. And if one can get these fine ripened peaches and knows how it should be done the cobbler can be added to the sunshine of a home on a rainy day. But no cobbler can tell one how to make it. It has to be handed down from one generation to another or taught by one skilled in that tough of cookery which is a gift of birth. It is certainly not to be tried by the novice.

ON THE READING OF NEWSPAPERS.

It is a remarkable fact that the United States has more readers of newspapers than all the other countries in the world put together. The stupendous figure of all periodical circulation, including newspapers, in the United States is in itself the amazement of the European nations. We print and read every week day 2,300 newspapers with a circulation of 32,755,957 daily copies. That is a newspaper for every three persons in the United States. Then one may consider that a newspaper is read by from one to half a dozen persons. Of course there are many thousands of people who do not read at all and others who would not read a newspaper if one were lying about but they are in a small minority. The annual circulation of all periodicals reaches a total of 15,475,145,102. It is hard to see how, in this overwhelming tidal wave, of printed literature and news gathering forces, one can be entirely ignorant. The newspaper, the magazine, the technical journal, the religious weekly and monthly, the scientific and business publications all act to provide a post graduate course for the child out of school. Into the great university provided here any man or woman may enter. It is there-

The Invasion of Picture Brides

By FREDERICK J. HASKIN

New York—While premiers and potentates are struggling with problems of readjustment, the women of Europe are quietly settling one of the gravest after-war difficulties by emigrating to this country, where there is a surplus supply of husbands. These women have a great advantage over former generations of immigrants, who had to find their own way to this country. They have at their disposal the art of photography.

Thus it happens that genuine romance has recently been revived in New York by the advent of hundreds of picture brides from the most man-exhausted countries. The Japanese have long used the picture bride system, but now half a dozen other nations have followed suit. Every ship on a dozen or so, and the other day a Greek steamship arrived with three hundred in its company, much to the confusion of the immigration authorities and to the great disgust of several priests and persons who have been kept constantly busy tying the marriage knot.

Most of the brides are from Greece, Syria, Turkey, Czechoslovakia, and Italy, and are fair specimens of proletarian ugliness. They do not seem to be the slightest bit discontent at the thought of marrying men they have never seen before, although they are naturally curious at the sort of prizes they are destined to draw.

The waiting picture grooms are equally curious as to their fate. Thus, when this particular Greek ship was held up in the harbor for a long interval, owing to a case of smallpox on board, the harbor police launch had to be requisitioned to keep the impatient swains from mobbing the boat. They circled around it in rented motor-boats and dories, eagerly searching the faces of the damsels on the lower deck, and comparing them with thumb-marked photographs. Some of them, having located their prospective brides, sent them fruit, candy and even wearing apparel in baskets, which the ladies lifted with a piece of light grace.

As soon as the girls stepped off the boat, there was a wild rush among the assembled bachelors. A few seconds of hasty identification and introduction, and then a storm of rapturous embraces. An onlooker would have supposed the couples had known each other for years. In a few cases, there was a childhood betrothal in the background, but for the most part an exchange of photographs and a letter or two was the only basis of the relationship.

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

By ROY K. MOULTON

TO A HUSBAND.
Barber, I've yielded to your faithful prayer.
For being half-wild and weak, I've allowed you to spray Quackster's Oil on my hair.
Tub Aru-Skine on my back.
I've taken such lotion and ointment and balm, You've made me feel like a mud massage.
But one thing I'll stick to and stick to the end—I WON'T take a mud massage.

Barber, insist till you're blue in the face.
Give vent to chagrin and to spleen.
You've browbeaten me like the rest of your race, And my check is two dollars fifteen.
I've allowed you to strangle and drown me and burn.
I smell like a holly garage.
But now is the time that this worm turns a turn—I WON'T TAKE A MUD MASSAGE.

King Arthur seated himself with dignity in the place of honor at the Round Table and raised his hand for attention.
"Doncha know this is a self-serve place now, ya poor bimbo?" yelled Lancelot as he buzzed around carrying a trayful of salmon sandwiches to Guinevere.

William Tell, having placed the apple on his son's head, stepped back and muttered nervously, as he adjusted his arrow with shaking hands.
"Shoot 'er natural, pop," called back his offspring, clicking the prancing pards in his trousers.

This sally so cheered William that he took heart and rolled up $2 out of a possible 100.

OPINIONS OF OTHERS

Wisconsin's tobacco crop will be a little more than one-half of last year's crop, latest reports indicate. But decreased acreage will be offset, in some measure, by the superior quality of this year's crop, the leaf being especially fine in sections where the worms were removed before they played their havoc.

Tobacco produces large farm revenue in Wisconsin, particularly down around Rock county. Perhaps the most serious difficulty of the grower in the past was the failure to have a proper standardization of grades and with it a market for the crop. The tobacco industry, which would have had the same effect as prices quoted for wheat.

There has been no small degree of gambling in the raising and selling of tobacco, a game in which the best buyer or the shrewdest trader has been the victor. In the absence of a fixed market price it was a problem with the farmer to know whether he was getting the best price for his crop. Tobacco has not, in this respect, been a very successful crop. The movement for standardization of the different grades and qualities is reaching the point where it may soon be successfully applied.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

JUST HALF OF THAT, PLEASE.
Grandmother says when I pass her the cake: "Just half of that, please."
I serve her the tenderest portion of steak: "Just half of that, please."
And she desert a nice pudding or pie, As I pass Grandma's share she is sure to reply: "With the grace of a twinkie to light up her eye: "Just half of that, please."

I've cut down her portions but still she tells me: "Just half of that, please."
Though scarcely a mouthful of food she can see: "Just half of that, please."
If I pass her the chocolate she breaks one in two. "Just half of that, please."
There's nothing so small but a smaller will do. And she says, perhaps fearing she's talking from two. "Just half of that, please."

When at last Grandma leaves us the angels will hear: "Just half of that, please."
When with joys for the gentle and brave they appear: "Just half of that, please."
And for fear they may think she is selfish up there. "Just half of that, please."
Or is taking what may be a young angel's share. She will say with the jowliest smile she can: "Just half of that, please."

HOROSCOPE

"The stars incline, but do not compel."
SATURDAY, AUG. 20.
According to this day's planetary rule financial matters hang in the balance, and it may be hazardous to subject money to loss, either through speculation or investment. In the industrial and commercial channels, as well as through lending and borrowing, the stars declare it is a bad time to have dealings with landlords or magistrates. Social and domestic relations are under a splendid rule for happiness and prosperity, with strong inclination to courtship and marriage for those eligible.

Those whose birthday it was 16th or 17th of the month, or who were born in the morning, otherwise they should be particularly careful with their money, lest they lose it in speculation, trading or by watering it. A child born on this day may be fond of pleasure and society, and be disposed to spend its money fast and foolishly unless well trained. It will be kind and generous to excess.

CUT CHILD RELIEF CHARITY IN AUSTRIA

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
VIENNA.—A new survey of economic conditions has caused the Austrian government to reduce the amount of child relief in its charity in Austria. It is proposed this summer campaign to reduce the number of children fed to 200,000 and these will be confined to Vienna and other cities where much work will be faced during the coming winter.

The general improvement in the rural regions is indicated by the action of the government in closing 16 of their kitchens in Upper Austria alone in one week.

All children of parents in fair financial circumstances are excluded under the new program as well as children of farmers. In other words, American relief will be confined to those in actual need.

Milk Would Have Prevented Pellagra

The United States Public Health Service says pellagra is due to lack of milk in the diet. It is caused by an unbalanced diet. Milk is the great factor in preventing pellagra. It is the only food that contains all the elements needed to keep the body strong and healthy.

"Milk is a food of milk supplies as much fuel to the body as two pounds of potatoes or eight eggs, but it is much better, because it is so highly nutritious. That is why milk is the best food for a child and for a man's method."

Dr. Milton J. Rosenham, Professor of Preventive Medicine and Hygiene at the University of Chicago, and formerly director of the Hygienic Laboratory of the United States Public Health Service, has prepared a booklet on the subject of milk.

You need this for the protection of your own health or that of your family.

Get Washington Information Bureau a free copy of this booklet for anyone who sends two cents in stamps for return postage. The booklet will be sent to you by mail, enclosing the name and address legibly.

TWO NEW SCIENCES TO TAKE JOY FROM LIFE FOR CROOKDOM

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Paris.—Psychometry and Graphometry are two new "sciences" intended to make the way of the transgressor easier than it is. Psychometry is the science of measuring the pores of the body. Graphometry is the science of form and relative proportion of letters in handwriting.

Dr. Edmond Locard, head of the Lyons police laboratory of identification, has elaborated these new methods of crime detection to a point where the results have been accepted in the Lyons courts and are said to have been proved effective.

In psychometry, Dr. Locard holds the number, form and position of body pores remain the same throughout life. The impression of the pores in Dr. Locard's system is colored by chemical salts or very fine powders so they may be photographed under a microscope.

Dr. Locard tells of several successful prosecutions supported by his new sciences. In one case a burglar wore gloves but left an impression of a small surface of "porcelain." That trace sprang freely, left the impression of pores surfaces through his gloves and went to jail.

Graphometry, as termed by Dr. Locard, consists primarily in the theory that handwriting shows always a certain relation in size between letters and unmistakable characteristics in form, particularly of loops, in addition to these principles, Dr. Locard, of course, utilizes generally accepted methods of detecting forgeries.

Improvements —In the— New Gas Ranges

During all the years that we have been in business in Janesville we have been particular about carrying only those appliances which would give the greatest service to consumers with the greatest saving in gas consumption.

Many Janesville housewives are today using with entire satisfaction Gas Ranges which they bought from us ten and fifteen years ago.

We do not say that the new Ranges which we are now selling are better in material or construction than those older ones, because we have always maintained the same scrutiny as to quality.

But the new Ranges have many features for cleanliness, convenience and economy which are the result of constant improvement in the development of the gas industry. For instance, there is the ventilated oven, which insures that only fresh hot air can come in contact with your food; the double oven lining, which provides "dead air" insulation and therefore better baking results, and the sanitary burner box, which is easy to keep clean.

With such features, and with gas being sold at the present rate, you will find that gas presents the most efficient and economical method of cooking your meals.

Webster School Swamps Field in Playground Swim Meet

130 CROWD BEACH TO TAKE PART IN EXCITING EVENTS

SCHOOL STANDINGS.

Webster	47
Adams	39
Washington	31
Jefferson	29

With her "ducklings" capturing places in eight of the 10 events, Webster school carried off the point honors in the annual water carnival of the Janesville playgrounds held at Lakeside beach Friday afternoon. The high street school captured the victory, pushed on by an excellent "school spirit" by its roots.

The original 40 entries for Webster were bumped to 120 at the river side. So great was the cry raised by the children to get in the events that Director E. S. Lamoreaux was forced to increase the number of entries to 120. The school was the only one to let them in.

Holt a Spectator. Spectators to the number of several hundred men, women and children gathered on the beach to watch the "ducklings" swim. They were Frank O. Holt, superintendent of schools.

Those in charge of the meet were fortunate in being able to get in before the water struck the beach. The last event was just finished and most of the swimmers and on-lookers had departed when the clouds opened. Until that time, the weather was excellent and the water was cooler than the air.

Cause Tilt Exciting. School spirit was at a height never seen before. The boys and girls constantly "bumped" the water. The school was coming out on top. They kept urging their stars to make every endeavor to keep in the lead or to attempt to get in the lead.

The exciting event of the afternoon came when the cause tilting contest was staged. The Webster school of Adams school demonstrated the tipsy sport in snappy style. Townsend, pole man, eliminated Jefferson and Washington. Webster out of the way. Clark handled the long puller well for the Webster school and duelled bravely.

Connell Giebs Star. With memories of last year's success at the community picnic here last year, the Connell sisters featured largely in the girls' events. Margaret Connell first in the fancy diving event, while her sister was second in the diving event.

Clark of Webster showed remarkable stamina and speed in the 200-yard race for boys. He noted out Connell of the same institution by a yard.

Ruth Is Third in Batting in American League

(By Associated Press.) Chicago, Ill.—Duke I. Ruth, the Yankee slugger who registered his 40th home run of the season in the second game of the farewell series between New York and the White Sox in Chicago, has bettered himself to third place among the battlers of the American League with an average of .374, according to figures released today and which include games of last season.

The big southpaw also increased his lead as a run getter, having registered 126 times, and boosted his total base mark to 426. Beside his 40th home run, Ruth has cracked out 28 doubles and eight triples.

Harry Heilmann, the Detroit outfielder, suffered a slight slump in hitting, but continued to top the list of players who have participated in 60 or more games, with a mark of .407. Ty Cobb is the runner-up with .381.

Other leading battlers: George Slaughter of Washington added a brace of stolen bases to his string and is showing the way to the base stealers with 22 thefts.

Both players were in top form for the match. Mrs. Mallory, the present title holder, has according to the experts, exhibited the best tennis of her career in the preliminary rounds while Miss Browne, national champion in 1912, 1913 and 1914 seemed to have all the wizardry she displayed in her championship days.

The experts credit Miss Browne with being the peerless technician among women tennis players. They are equally agreed that Mrs. Mallory is the more combination of strength and endurance.
